SPEAKERS

John Streff, OD, received his OD degree from the Chicago College of Optometry/ After 10 years in private practice he joined the staff at the Gesell Institute of Child Development where he introduced the utilization of movement and motor-sensory functions in classrooms for primary grades. Dr. Streff has served as a professor at the Southern College of Optometry (SCO). He left SCO to become Optometric Director of the SA Noel Center in Lancaster, OH. He is a founding member of the Neuro Optometric Rehabilitation Association. His recent book, Childhood Learning: Journey or Race is available from OEP.

Richard Harris, MD, graduated from Loyola Stritch School of Medicine and Chicago Institute for Psychoanalysis. He is a Clinical Associate Professor of Psychiatry at Northwestern University Medical School and A psychiatrist and psychoanalyst in private practice for over 20 years. Dr. Harris has had vision training and has incorporated that perspective and experience into an evolving approach to helping people perform to their potential.

Joseph S. Grasso, DO, received his Doctor of Osteopathy in 1991 from the New England College of Osteopathic Medicine. He went to Florida Hospital East Orlando where he completed a residency in family practice and board certification. Dr. Grasso's practice is oriented around the application of the traditional art of osteopathic diagnosis and treatment. He is a frequent lecturer around the U.S. and abroad.

Geoff Heddle, OD, received his OD from Indiana University in 1998. He has practiced in Colorado, Connecticut, Maryland, and Washington, D.C. He currently practices and resides in St. Joseph, MI. Being an avid sportsman led to his desire to work with athletes. Although he primarily practices general optometry from a developmental perspective he has worked with professional athletes from baseball, basketball, football, golf, and his personal favorite.... hockey.
